

The Future of British Universities

A Talk by Professor Chris Husbands
Vice-Chancellor, Sheffield Hallam University

Whirlowbrook Hall, Monday 23rd of April 2018, 7pm buffet, 8pm talk

According to the BBC 2017 was a challenging year for universities. They were hit by a combination of uncomfortable issues ranging from student fees, value-for-money and insecure funding to wider concerns about free speech, senior pay and the impact of internationalisation/Brexit. This left many feeling that universities were drifting away from being forces for public good and were looking out of touch and self-serving.

These are some of the issues that we can discuss with Professor Chris Husbands at our annual guest lecture. Chris is an alumnus of Emmanuel College, Cambridge (MA, PhD) and the Institute of Education (London University) (PGCE). He has spent a long and distinguished career in the education sector.

Tickets are £17.50 per person including the buffet meal. Cheques payable to Cambridge Society Sheffield should be sent to Kevan Scholes: 111 Button Hill SHEFFIELD S11 9HG (tel:0114 2360612; email: kscholes@scholes.u-net.com) by 9 April 2018 with the reply slip below. (Note: cheques are not banked until after the event)

✂-----

Cambridge Society Sheffield: Chris Husbands' talk, Whirlowbrook Hall, Monday 23 April, 7pm
I/we will be attending the talk:

Name	College	Matriculation Year

I/we will be accompanied by:
